4 p.m. Race To The Bottom
a film by Jonathan King, Michael Hamm, and Daniela Rusnokova

Race To The Bottom is a twenty-minute film about truck drivers working at the Port of Oakland, where over 2,000 independent truck drivers operate every day. The film gives us a look into the lives of the drivers, as told by three men, Abdul, Lorenzo, and Porfirio. From inside of their cabs we learn about their struggles to earn a living wage, support their families, and stay healthy as they do their jobs, transporting goods in and out of the Port. The community of West Oakland, which has an asthma rate of 1 in 5 children, pays an unfair cost with their health for the industry to operate. Race To The Bottom tells the stories of truck drivers and community members as they come together in a coalition to make their voices heard.

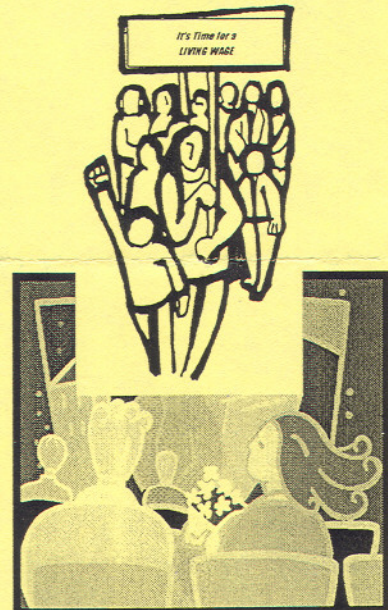

5 p.m. Reception with Videographers

6 p.m. SF Living Wage Coalition Community Outreach Documentary

A half-hour documentary featuring the SF Living Wage Coalition's campaign to raise wages for workers at city-funded non-profit agencies, highlighting interviews with Living Wage Coalition outreach volunteers and staff at SF non-profit agencies that provide a glimpse into the problems that non-profits are facing as funding is being drastically cut.

Free Admission – Food and Drinks sold separately
