Women of Shakti Samuha, a Nepali organization founded and run by trafficking survivors, work daily to abolish human trafficking and to sustain other survivors. Back from training conducted by these women, and from attending Nepal's 3rd Annual Conference of Female Trafficking Survivors, Arla S. Ertz brings us a presentation about their work building solidarity within Nepal and with women around the world.

Arla S. Ertz is a San Francisco social worker, long-time activist, and WILPF member. Arla was invited by Harambee Arts to travel to Nepal to be trained by Nepali women trafficking survivors in the expressive arts therapy program they went through to heal their trauma and now use with recently liberated survivors.
